

Being a White Student at a Historically Black College – Video Reflection Guide

Watch this impactful short film, which explores the unique experiences and dynamics of being a guest in a space historically rooted in Black culture and community. As you watch, reflect on the relationships and challenges faced by individuals navigating these environments.

Three questions to consider while watching:

1. How might the experience of being a minority (in physical number) in this setting shape a deeper understanding of privilege and belonging?

2. What parallels can you draw between this experience and other spaces where individuals find themselves as cultural outsiders?

3. How can guests in any community contribute to creating a more inclusive and respectful environment without overshadowing the voices of those who belong?
